Kapitel 3: Chapter 3: Coming Home

Chapter 3

So here's chapter 3 ^^ I hope you like it ^_^ Enjoy ^^

"Good Day Severus." Anna smiled at him softly, and sat down next to the Slytherin. "Hey Anna. How are you?" The black-haired boy closed his book, and looked at his psychiatrist. "Fine thank you. How are you doing?" "I'm okay. Thanks." Every day it was the same. Anna and Severus greeted each other, and then would talk for an hour. Since he had been allowed to leave the Hospital Wing two weeks ago, almost everything had went back to normal. The only thing that had really changed was that Black had stopped picking on him. He had really proved himself at least reliable, since he had held what he had promised. He had not only stopped picking on Severus, but had also started to protect him. Whenever the Slytherin needed help the Griffendore was there for him. Thanks to Sirius, he was now able to go into the Slytherin Common Room, and take a shower every day. That made his look's improve dramatically. Since then, everything in his life had improved. And that all thanks to Sirius.

The thought of the handsome Griffendore made him blush. "You're blushing Severus." Anna giggled. "Who are you thinking of?" Severus glared at her. Somehow, Anna had become something like a friend. She didn't judge him, and she listened. Of course it was her Job, but Severus felt that she really cared about him, not like the other psychiatrist before her. "No one. I'm thinking of no one." Anna grinned and said "Maybe… Sirius Black?" That made Severus blush even more violently. "Shut up!" Anna laughed. "It's okay Sev. Don't be ashamed, he's really hot." "Anna!" the black-haired boy grinned. "But you are right. He is really hot." "Who's really hot?" Sirius Black was standing behind Snape, looking down on him with his boyish grin. Sirius knew that the Slytherin was Gay, and it didn't bother him for he liked both male and female. "Lucius Malfoy." Anna said, smiling at Sirius. "I think he took a fancy to our Severus here. What do you think?" Sirius laughed, one of his rich, barking laughs. It always made Severus shiver when he laughed like that. "Don't talk nonsense Anna. As if someone like Lucius Malfoy would even notice me. He's not only a Sexgod, but also a year above me and one of the smartest student's in Hogwarts." "I do think he has taken a fancy to you Sev. And if you like him, I think you should make a move on him." Anna looked at her clock and said "Wow, it's time for me to go. Sorry Sev, but we have to cut this short. I won't be able to see you when you're on vacation, but I will see you the day you arrive. If there's an emergency, you can always Owl me okay?" Sev looked at her and smiled. "Yes Anna. Thank you. Have a good vacation." "Thank you Severus. You too." and with that she left.

Sirius sat down next to Snape, and looked at him. "Uhm... you really think Malfoy is a Sexgod?" he suddenly sounded nervous. "Well... yeah, I guess. I mean he's really handsome and smart and stuff. I don't know why he should take a liking to me. The only thing I'm good in is Potions." Sirius rolled his eyes and said "You don't give yourself any credit do you? You know you're an excellent student." Severus sighted. "I'm not going to argue with you... everything lie's in the eye of the beholder." Sirius grinned at him, and Severus had to quickly look away. Why did that stupid idiot have to be so charming and drop dead gorgeous? "Why don't you look me in the eye Sev? Can't take my beauty?" Sirius laughed. Snape saw his chance to taunt the Griffendore and said "And what if that were true?" Sirius starred at the Slytherin with an almost shocked expression. Severus started laughing. "You mean prat! You were mocking me!" Sirius jumped on the other, pushing him to the ground softly. He was now kneeling over Snape, grinning. Their faces were so close, that Sirius soft hair was stroking Snape's cheek. The Slytherin looked up into the outrageous beautiful eye's of the Animagus, and those eye's were looking back into his. "Sev..." Sirius whispered, his voice low and husky. Snape could feel his throat go dry. Sirius face was coming closer, his hands softly sliding down to the Slytherin's hips. "Sirius..." Snape's voice almost failed him. he was just about to close his eye's and let it happen, when he noticed James Potter walking towards them. He quickly pushed Sirius off, hissing "Potters here!" and then ran off. Sirius looked after the Slytherin, and the first time in his life, he was truly unhappy to see James.

Severus had quickly laid as much distance between him and Sirius as possible. What the hell das happened over there? Had Sirius really tried to kiss him? That was Absurd! Why the hell would that gorgeous Man want to kiss him? It made no sense. Sighting, Severus started to pack clothes and other stuff into his suitcase. Maybe it had just been the romance of the moment. Maybe Sirius had simple gone mad. Snape just couldn't explain it. //It's probably nothing...// He closed his suitcase, looking at his watch. It was time to go down to the Hogwarts Express. Slowly, he started walking to the train, pulling the heavy suitcase after him. "May I help you with that Severus?" a silky voice near his ear woke Snape from his thought. He quickly turned around, and looked right into to brilliant grey eyes. "Malfoy?" he asked, blinking. "Please, call me Lucius." Without any farther questions, he took Snape's suitcase and carried it for him. "You don't have to..." Snape started, but Lucius interrupted him "Don't worry, it's my pleasure. What are you going to do when your at home Severus?" he smiled at him softly. "Nothing I guess... Just relax."Lucius laughed. "That doesn't sound like you at all Severus." Severus looked at the silver haired Slytherin and asked "Really? What did you expect me to do?" They had arrived at the train, and Severus followed the Malfoy into a empty compartment in the train. "Well, I thought you would be reading all the time, making potions and stuff~" Severus smiled. "Well... I WILL be reading a lot~" "It's the first time you've done that." Malfoy looked at the raiven haired boy. "Done what?" the smaller of them both asked. "Smile. You should do that more often. It looks good on you." Severus just smiled again, and sat down at the window. "People keep saying that... maybe I should."

As they arrived in London, Severus said a quick good bye to Lucius, who was picked up by his father as always. He, who had no family left always felt depressed, whenever he arrived or departed. Everywhere there were parents, aunts and uncles waiting for a student, while he had to go home alone everytime. In these Moments he always missed his mother more then ever. She had been such a wonderful, wonderful person... Severus shook his head, as if to get ride of those thoughts. He took his Suitcase, and started to walk towards the wall that would lead him into the muggel station. "You're not gonna change?" Suprised, Severus turned his head to look right into the beautiful eyes of Sirius Black. "No, I always go in my school clothes." he answered and then asked "What are you doing here? Why aren't you with your friends?" "Did you forget?" Sirius asked, looking at the Slytherin that stil looked puzzled. "You said you'ed take me home to Dumbledore." It took Snape a few seconds to remember what the boy was talking about. "You really want to come with me?" he asked shyly. Sirius grinned at him and nodded "Yeah dude. Were gonna have fun." Severus just rolled his eyes and mumbled "this is going to be a long vacation..."
